

The Lidcombe News Pie

1. Index of Articles from Lidcombe News 1998- 2014

It was sometimes difficult to decide where to put certain articles as they seemed to cover more than one of the topics. If I just couldn't decide I referenced the article in both so don't be surprised if there are a few duplicates. I would also suggest that if you are searching for something specific you look in more than one place as the way you think may not be the way I do! I also apologise in advance if I have left anyone out or misreferenced any articles - I have done my best. And a huge thank you to Kate Morley - without whose help the organisation of the articles would have been a massive task... and much less fun!

As the Lidcombe News spans 50 editions there have been some terminology changes over the sixteen years since 1998 when it began. Please don't think that we took the children onto the internet when it says 'going online' in the earlier Dear Sues- what we meant was moving to unstructured treatment! I strongly recommend you read Ann Packman's article (you can find this in the index under 'clinical procedures') to see the reasoning behind the changes, but as a very short resumé see below:

Changes have taken place in three areas- the verbal contingencies, the context of parental treatment and the structure of the program. The three main vocabulary changes that may affect your understanding are as follows:

1. 'Sessional' treatment is now called structured treatment
2. 'Going online' is now called unstructured treatment
3. 'Maintenance' is now called Stage 2

NB The supplement to Edition 43 contains a compilation of all the articles on Bilingual matters from Lidcombe News.

NB The Dear Sue and Just Explain That Again index is a separate document.
